The historical and emotional impact of the Holocaust can be overwhelming for both teachers and students. Join us to reflect on how we approach this important topic with limited time and resources in the classroom and to support each other's' growth.

The US Holocaust Memorial Museum has created guidelines and resources to support responsible instructional choices which will be presented by Holocaust Museum Fellow and local educator Stella Schafer. Stella and other educators will share strategies, including a model lesson, for putting the Holocaust into historical context and avoiding common pitfalls.

This workshop will support both educators who have experience teaching the Holocaust and those who are just getting started.
